Preface

The Syriac language is a dialect of Middle Aramaic that was once widely spoken in the ancient world, particularly in the region of Mesopotamia (modern-day Iraq, Syria, and parts of Turkey). Syriac emerged in the 1st century AD and was widely used as a liturgical language by Christian communities in the Middle East, particularly by the Assyrian and Maronite churches. Syriac has its own unique alphabet, which is written from right to left. The script is derived from the Aramaic alphabet and consists of 22 letters. Syriac is a Semitic language, closely related to Arabic and Hebrew. Syriac has had a significant impact on the development of Arabic and Kurdish languages. It has also influenced the liturgical languages of various Christian traditions, including the Assyrian, Maronite, and Chaldean churches. Although Syriac is no longer spoken in everyday life, it is still used as a liturgical language by some Christian communities, particularly in the Middle East and India (by the Saint Thomas Christian community).

The study of the Syriac language is intended to cultivate interest among students in understanding Syriac literature and translating it into modern languages. It helps in comprehending the tradition of St Thomas Christians. This syllabus equips students with knowledge of the Syriac language, its nuances and syntax, and appreciation of its literature and culture. It also aims to develop skills in reading, writing, and translating Syriac texts. The syllabus covers basic Syriac grammar, early Syriac literature, dialogue patterns, the history of St. Thomas Christians, and conversations in the target language. Students will be enabled to construct correct sentences in Syriac and lead simple conversations.

St Thomas College Palai Autonomous was conferred autonomous status by the UGC on 19 January 2024 and subsequently Mahatma Gandhi University, Kottayam after due procedure, notified it only on May 7, 2024, which resulted in the delay of the constitution of various statutory bodies (Governing Body, Academic Council and Board of Studies) of our college. Therefore, the first Academic Council of St Thomas College Palai Autonomous held on 10 June 2024 decided to adopt the syllabus of Mahatma Gandhi University for the UG programmes of our college for the academic year 2024–25.
